1041 APPLICATION SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION REQUEST

Overview of Comments: This 1041 Supplement was prepared based on meetings conducted with Pueblo County and their representatives on September 24 and October 22, 2008. Pueblo County officials provided valuable input regarding the 1041 Application submitted by the SDS team. Primary requests were for additional information in specific areas (see below) and to ensure that the public was thoroughly informed regarding the project prior to the 1041 Public Hearing.

List of Requested Information and Actions:

1. Provide schedule for responses

Attachment 1 sent to Mr. Kim Headley on September 30, 2008. The Applicant has addressed all responses as requested.

2. Modify Property Owners List – Provide names, mailing addresses, and parcel numbers of property owners within 500 ft. of the alignment in Pueblo County.

A list of property owners within 500 feet of the proposed pipeline easement has been developed and included as Attachment 2. The Applicant has provide a copy of the mailing list in Excel format on a CD per Kim Headley's request.

Mr. Dan Higgins and Mr. Headley will coordinate on the language to be used in the mailing notice to the property owners, as well as the timing for the distribution. The mailing notices will be printed on Pueblo County letterhead and will be distributed by the Applicant on behalf of Pueblo County.

3. List of Structures Removed, Acquisitions, Easements, etc. by parcel- By individual parcel, what is Applicant's proposed approach to the property?

A total of 2 existing structures (one residence and one garage) will be removed from 2 parcels out of a total of 139 properties along the alignment in Pueblo West. One parcel is required to be acquired via fee simple title. Four additional properties are desired, but not required, for acquisition via fee simple title. A total of 138 parcels will require permanent easements. It is not expected that the pipeline will lower property values along the alignment. The Applicant's desire is to work with adjacent property owners of property acquired fee simple to vacate adjacent lot lines with an easement for the pipeline such that no property in Pueblo County is permanently removed from the tax roles.

A letter of invitation to the public meetings (and an offer to meet with them individually) has been sent to potentially affected property owners with an aerial view of the desired easement and how it affects their property.

A .pdf copy of the Pueblo West parcel map will be provided to Alex Schatz/Banks & Gesso, LLC.

4. Public Meeting scheduled at Lake Pueblo State Park- Oct. 16- at Visitor Center- To discuss effects of SDS on Lake Pueblo State Park

Meeting notice included in Attachment 3- meeting conducted as scheduled

5. Public Meetings scheduled at Pueblo West- Oct. 23 and Oct. 27- at VFW- To discuss effects of SDS on properties in Pueblo West

Meeting notice included in Attachment 3

6. Public Meeting scheduled for Fountain Creek- Oct. 30- at El Pueblo History Museum- To discuss effects of SDS on Fountain Creek

Meeting notice included in Attachment 3.

7. FEMA Flood Hazards

A map showing the FEMA floodplain boundaries, FEMA panel numbers, and location of major Project components is included as Attachment 4.

The Applicant understands that they will be required to obtain permits for construction in FEMA floodplains as required by the Pueblo County Flood Plain Administrator.

8. Pueblo West Wastewater Discharge to Pueblo Reservoir

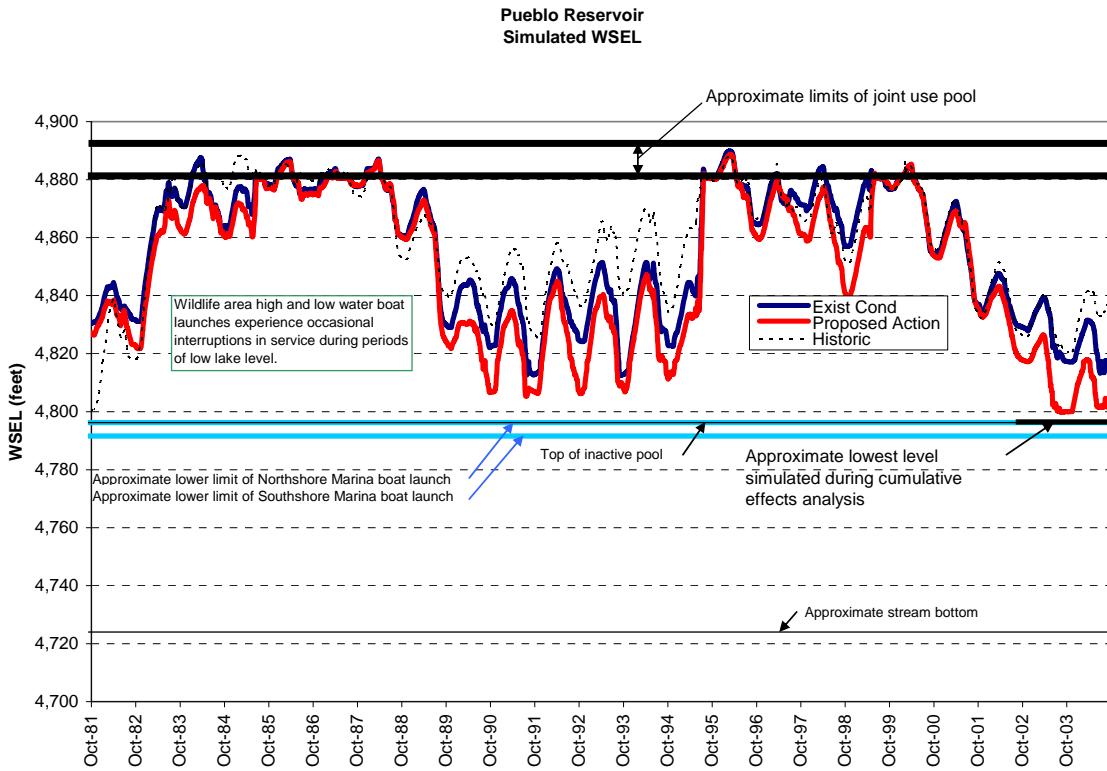

Per discussion with the Pueblo West Utilities Director, the water rights associated with SDS do not rely on wastewater return flows to Pueblo Reservoir.

9. Impact to Pueblo Reservoir Levels

Storage of water in Pueblo Reservoir is an important element of SDS. This water will be used to meet customer demands and may be impacted by several operational objectives such as water rights exchanges or instream flow management programs. In general, the use of Pueblo Reservoir by the Applicant would result in a slight lowering of the water levels on the lake. On average, per the Draft EIS, these decreases would be about 3.5 feet lower than current levels.

Demandson Pueblo Reservoir would be greater during times of drought when the Applicant would rely more heavily on water from storage. During these times when weather and storage conditions are similar to those experienced in the last four or five years, the pre-decisional Final EIS predicts that lake levels will drop by only 20 feet below those experienced during the worst historic periods of drawdown. While these are slightly higher than the average, these decreases would be felt during the winter months when recreation demands are lowest and would therefore have a lower direct impact. The maximum drop in water level during the summer boating season would be during a period similar to the recent drought and would be slightly less than 20 feet.

The following figure graphically depicts the lake levels (water surface elevations) for the last 20 years and also those under the proposed SDS actions with 2046 demands over the same time period. The figure below includes historic reservoir levels and the lowest estimated lake level with respect to cumulative effects. The figure also includes the location of the lower operational level of the north shore and south shore boat ramps.

10. Reclamation Mitigation Measures

Based on the request by Pueblo County to review the Reclamation mitigation measures, Springs Utilities has coordinated with Reclamation, and Reclamation is in the process of developing required mitigations. Preliminary information is included as Attachment 5.

The Applicant has listed proposed mitigations in Section 17.172.120, Section H in the Application.

11. Groundwater Management (Discussion Question) - Pueblo County personnel requested information on how the Applicant will treat groundwater produced from excavations, especially Juniper Pump Station.

Construction site dewatering is likely to take many forms on a project as diverse as SDS. When groundwater is not encountered during construction operations, control of water generally consists of surface flow diversions that prevent water from entering the work zone. These activities may require permits but are often accomplished with minimal disturbance and can be done without permits or with US Army Corps of Engineer's Nationwide 404 permits.

When groundwater is encountered, more aggressive dewatering measures may be required. The excavation itself can be dewatered using pumps or a series of wells can be installed to lower groundwater in the vicinity of construction activities.

When water is pumped on a construction site, a permit is generally required for the discharge of that water. This program is regulated by CDPHE under Section 402. These permits generally require the installation of measures to assure that pollutants are not introduced into the receiving water. For small flows, the water can be filtered prior to discharge. For larger flows, such as may be encountered at the Juniper Pump Station, a pond or collection basin would be constructed to capture the pumped water. Here the water is stored for a sufficient time to allow large particulates to settle and remain behind when the water is discharged.

12. "Pre-Construction" vs. "Comparable" Definition with Respect to Restoration- A request was made by Pueblo County personnel for further definition of "restoration" to reflect intentions of the SDS Project.

Areas impacted by SDS will be restored to the "same or better" as original conditions. It is not possible to restore to exact original conditions; however, the SDS project will diligently restore areas disturbed by construction using standard industry methods, using currently available construction materials. Disturbed land will be reseeded with native plant species found in the general proximity to construction, or with pre-construction vegetation. Structures (i.e. fences, buildings and other structures) will be restored or replaced to meet current building codes, similar construction materials, size and location and will meet the "same or better" status with respect to the original condition ; or structures may be restored as agreed between the SDS Project and the property owner.

13. Clarification on Exchange Flows and Flood Effects on the Fountain

SDS-related flow increases in the year 2046 are expected to average about 70 cfs. This flow compares to an existing base flow of approximately 150 cfs and would result in an increase in flow depth of 4 inches from the normal current depth of about 16 inches to a future depth of 20 inches. Flows of this depth pose no flood hazard and generally don't reach the banks of the channel. During flood flows, the relative impact due to the increased SDS related return flows becomes negligible. For the 2-year flood (a flood that occurs on average every other year) flows are expected to be about 4,700 cfs, or over 50 times higher than normal base flows. This flood would have much faster flowing water and would be about 5.4 feet deep in the vicinity of 8th Street and cover the entire channel with water to a width of over 700 feet. The additional 70 cfs would add less than one half inch to the overall flood depth.

SDS operations may add varying amounts of water to Fountain Creek to maximize the Participant's use of their water resources. During some times of the year, releases to Fountain Creek may exceed the average of 70 cfs. The maximum operational release is expected to increase normal flows in Fountain Creek by no more than 300 cfs. In general, these flows would increase by eight or nine inches, would continue to be contained within the existing low flow channel and would not increase the flood risk at these times. The increase of 300 cfs, if such releases were to occur during flood events, would have a nominal effect on flows, increasing flood levels by less than ½ inch during the 100 year flood.

Visual representations of flows were developed summarizing the above information in more simplified terms and presented to support the Fountain Creek public meeting on October 30.

14. Sedimentation and Transport of Sediment in Fountain Creek

Flow in Fountain Creek moves sediment under almost all conditions. This is because the water applies force to the sands and gravels that make up the channel bottom and banks. These forces cause the soils along the bottom (bed material) to roll and move down the channel. This material is called sediment. The movement of sediment is a normal condition for natural streams and often does not cause problems. In fact, many streams reach an equilibrium condition where the amount of sediment being transported by the stream is constant and material is neither dropped (deposition) or picked up (erosion). When a stream has insufficient sediment it has a tendency to erode and when it has a surplus of sediment it has a tendency to deposit sediment.

Fountain Creek is a natural stream that is not in equilibrium. However, the conditions along the stream are such that there are segments that are experiencing deposition and others experiencing erosion. In very general terms, the stream has excess sediment capacity in its upper reaches above Williams Creek and seems to have less sediment capacity in the lower reaches through Pueblo. As such, erosion is noted in many locations above Williams Creek and some deposition is noted through Pueblo. Many of these impacts (either erosion or deposition) occur during base flows and are virtually imperceptible over a short period of time but can be noted as long term trends. Significant storms cause the same processes to occur but at a vastly accelerated pace. This is because, in general, the deeper and faster water moves, the more sediment it can carry. Quantifying these amounts of sediments is an imprecise science. Hence, much of the work done during the Draft EIS process looked at relative rates of sediment and relative impacts rather than absolute numbers.

Since SDS related activities in the year 2046 will result in some changes in base flow rate, it is reasonable to expect some changes in the sediment transport rates. Increases in base flow from the current 150 cfs to the expected 207 to 220 cfs will increase the ability of the stream to move bed materials. The DEIS looked at these effects and developed a measure of the relative ability of the various portions of the channel to convey this sediment. They concluded that these future conditions were likely to increase the ability of Fountain Creek to carry sediment along its entire length but that the upper portion would have a greater proportional increase than the lower reach (by about 10%). As such, they determined that there would be a likelihood that deposition in the lower portion through Pueblo might increase by a little more than 10%. They estimated this might be slightly over 100 tons of material per day. This amount may sound like a lot, but when depositing along a stream reach of over 20 miles long with an average width of around 100 feet that amounts to less than 1/5000th of a foot of additional depth per day. In other words, it would take about 15 years to add a foot to the depth over the entire length of channel. Certainly, some local areas could be expected to see faster increases. Nevertheless, this demonstrates this is indeed a long term impact and not one that would be noticed in a short period of time.

In contrast, large floods move significant amounts of sediment in very short periods of time. For example, the Fountain Creek Watershed Study reported that estimated sediment loads for small floods such as the 2-year flood might increase sediment loads by 250 to 500 times those during base flows. The 10-year flood might increase sediment loads by up to 3000 times those experienced during base flows. Clearly, these have the potential to have significantly more noticeable impacts on the stream as can be seen by the rapid bank erosion that is often seen during floods. Since SDS will have little impact on flood flows, there is little likelihood that sediment transport rates during floods will change materially.

15. Cost Analysis and Supplemental Information

The costs analysis was discussed with Alex Schatz from Banks and Gesso in a meeting on October 14 and Mr. Schatz examined a sampling of cost estimates prepared for the project.

16. Water Quality Reports- Pueblo Co. requesting recent water quality reports.

Copies of the water quality analysis reports list were provided to Pueblo County at the meeting on October 22, 2008 as requested. The Supplemental Information Report (SIR) was issued by Reclamation on October 3, 2008 and includes the results of the data included in the water quality reports. Revised water quality methodology and data analysis are discussed in the SIR. In summary, no significant differences from the original water quality analysis were noted based on the additional data and assessment conducted and presented in the SIR.

17. Obtain letter from Black Hills confirming their intent to supply the power to the substation and to submit a 1041 application.

Spring Utilities met with Black Hills Energy to determine power delivery to the Juniper Pump Station. Based on Black Hills Energy's plan of reducing the existing line voltage from 115 kV to 13.2 kV and transmitting the power to JPS at 13.2 kV, a 1041 permit will not be required for the power. A Special Use Permit and other County permits as required will be obtained by Black Hills Energy. The letter of intent to provide power is included as Attachment 6.

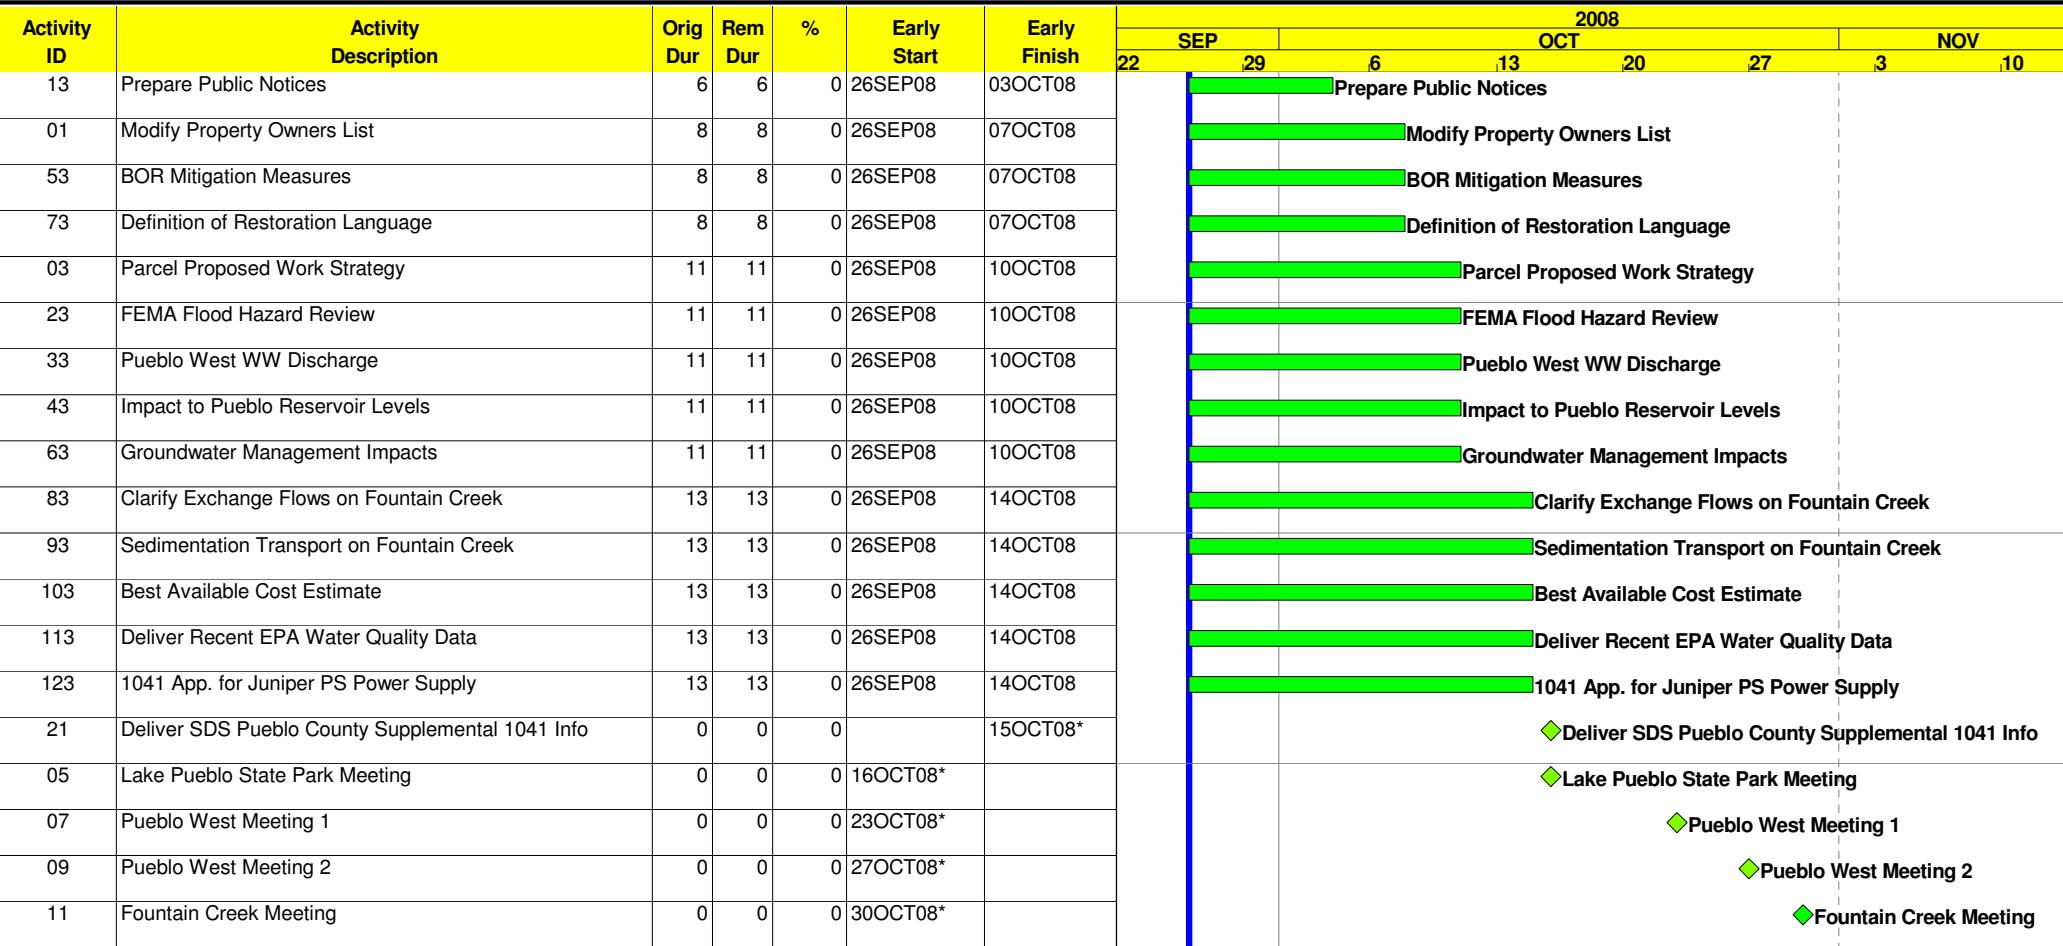

18. Timetable for point of decision of which outlet works will be used?

The tentative acceptance for the design by Reclamation is expected sometime in early 2009. A decision regarding the use of the JUM and associated design of the gravity flow pipeline will be provided to Pueblo County as requested when completed.

19. The Applicant will quantify the amount of cultural/archeological/paleontological sites, but cannot disclose what kind of sites they are. If the Board requires the Applicant to submit more information, will the Board be able to "shield" any cultural report submitted from the Public?

The executed Programmatic Agreement will satisfy this requirement. No further action on this issue is required by the Applicant at this time.

Mitigation Information

Summary of Primary Mitigation Measures Being Considered by the Bureau of Reclamation

- Wetlands
 - In order of priority: 1) Avoid and minimize impacts. 2) Mitigate on-site where the disturbance occurs to replace existing function and value. 3) Off-site wetland creation. Monitor to ensure successful mitigation.
- Noxious Weeds
 - Wash construction vehicles to minimize spreading between construction sites. Use weed-free mulch and seed mixes following construction. Monitor invasive plant populations.
- Wildlife
 - Use best management practices and state and federal guidelines to avoid and minimize impacts on wildlife. Conduct clearance surveys for a broad range of species (including endangered, threatened, state-listed, and special concern) prior to construction.
- Trails
 - Ensure trails are safely and reasonably routed around construction areas. Post signs directing trail users. If long-term impacts occur, work with local municipality to establish alternate route.
- Parks and Open Space
 - Within developed parks, replace/repair turf and irrigation systems and other facilities that are impacted. Within open space lands, revegetate with native vegetation. Monitor and maintenance to ensure efforts are successful.
- Upper Arkansas River corridor
 - Work with Colorado State Parks and Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to establish or enhance angling and boating access points and other facilities. For Alternatives 1 and 7, reconstruct Ark-Otero diversion for safe boat passage. For Alternatives 1, 3, 4, and 7, work with BLM to ensure river access points are compatible with proposed facilities.
- Aquatic Resources
 - Consult with CDOW on updated effects shown in the Supplemental Information Report. Consider providing assistance with aquatic habitat improvements and supporting state hatcheries and stocking programs.

- Lower Arkansas River Reservoirs
 - Seek opportunities to enhance angling, boating, or other recreational activities at affected reservoirs (Lake Henry, Lake Meredith, and Holbrook).
- Water Quality
 - Monitoring at key locations for key water quality parameters, including implementation of adaptive management to mitigate adverse effects of SDS.
- Flood Hydrology, Floodplains and Geomorphology
 - Monitor flood/erosion/geomorphology effects of the project, including implementation of adaptive management to mitigate adverse effects of SDS.
- Socioeconomics
 - Acquire properties and easements through voluntary, willing participant agreements to the maximum extent practicable by mutually agreed upon compensation.
- Land Use
 - Use best management practices to avoid or minimize impacts to surrounding properties.
- Cultural Resources
 - Implement avoidance measures during construction by physically marking boundaries around historic property locations; implementing treatment and discovery plans consistent with applicable regulations; and, preserve and protect eligible sites either in-place or by curation of project collections in approved curatorial facilities (e.g. museums, public education facilities).
- Indian Trust Assets
 - Coordination of tribal and other cultural resource issues will continue among Reclamation, the Colorado State Historic Preservation Officer, the Project Participants, and 15 tribes through a Programmatic Agreement.
- Noise and Vibration
 - Construction equipment will conform to applicable noise emission standards. Adhere to work hour restrictions during construction within 500 feet of populated areas. Limit public access in loud construction zones. House project operating equipment (e.g. pump stations) in structures designed to minimize radiant noise and conform to local noise ordinance requirements.

- Visual Resources
 - Revegetate disturbed areas to match existing vegetation. Restore existing grades to the extent practicable following pipeline excavations. For above ground facilities, match architectural designs to the surrounding area. Install baffles on construction lighting to direct light onto the construction area only. Construct overhead powerlines with non-specular (non-shiny) wire, insulators and poles.
- Traffic
 - Trenchless construction would be used as much as practicable when crossing railroads, state highways, county roadways, and major city roadways in densely populated areas. Traffic control plans would be prepared for approval by state and local traffic authorities and followed by contractors during construction. Improvements to existing access roads or construction of temporary access roads would be constructed as directed by state and local traffic authorities. Bridges would be modified or reconstructed when load limits are not adequate and other access routes are not reasonable.
- Geology and Paleontology
 - Survey and salvage resources prior to construction. Use a qualified paleontologist for identification, cataloguing, and curation, and of resources. Provide reporting and documentation. Monitoring during construction to avoid impacts and temporarily cease construction when necessary to allow for salvage of resources.
- Soils
 - Minimize time and extent of soil disturbance. Remove and stockpile topsoil for reuse in the area where it is excavated. Contain soils within the study area using sediment control measures such as silt fencing, trenches, and sediment traps. Promptly revegetate disturbed areas following construction.
- Air Quality
 - Implement standard control practices, such as watering, to minimize dust emissions in construction areas. Ensure construction equipment meets opacity standards for emissions. Promptly revegetate disturbances.
- Hazardous Materials
 - Prior to construction, existing waste disposal sites would be removed, characterized, and properly disposed at a permitted waste disposal facility. The ground surface would be inspected, sampled and analyzed (if necessary) for evidence of hazardous materials, and any hazardous materials would be excavated and properly disposed at a permitted waste disposal facility. If hazardous materials are encountered during construction, the same practices would be implemented.

- Environmental Management System and Adaptive Management
 - Implement an Environmental Management System (EMS) incorporating adaptive management as part of the selected alternative to bring about compliance with laws, regulations, permit requirements and mitigation measures identified in the EIS.

RE: Southern Delivery System

Dear Richard:

Black Hills Energy will continue to support the Southern Delivery System project as is our obligation as the area electric service provider. We have met with the Colorado Springs Utilities planning staff on several occasions to discuss electric service requirements, costs, and easement issues regarding the two proposed sites in our territory and will continue to work with them for electric infrastructure planning for this project. Please call me anytime at (719) 546-6474, or e-mail me at dan.smith@blackhillscorp.com if we can be of assistance to serve the site that you choose.

Sincerely,
